I- Read the following text then do the tasks below:

Most people enjoy reading about how some people become successful, which is probably why popular magazines often include articles about How to live a long, happy life. People read these articles because they give them useful advice.

One of my friends said to me the other day, "I'm starting my first job soon, and I want to get on well with my new workmates. Have you got any advice you can give me?"

For me the golden rule when you first start a job is this: listen and learn from colleagues. Also, ask your colleagues questions if you aren't sure about something and offer to help them if you can see something that needs doing.

In the long run, the best way to be a good colleague is simply to work hard. In my experience, people most dislike colleagues who make up excuses for not doing something and expect colleagues to do it for them.

If you have a job starting soon, remember some of these tips. In the end, you'll be happier and more successful if you get on well with your colleagues.

Answer the following questions: (21 marks)

1. Why do most people enjoy reading articles about how to live a long, happy life?
2. Who are the most disliked colleagues at work?

II- Read the following text then do the tasks below:

Mrs Ramsay is thinking about how sad it will be when all her children have grown up.

When Mrs Ramsay read just now to James and his eyes darkened, she thought, why should they grow up and lose all that? He was the most sensitive of all her children. But all, she thought, were full of promise. Prue, a perfect angel with the others, and sometimes now, at night especially, she took one's breath away with her beauty.

Andrew – even her husband admitted that his gift for mathematics was extraordinary. And Nancy and Roger, they were both wild creatures now, scampering about over the country all day long. Why she asked, pressing her chin on James's head should they grow up so fast? She would have liked always to have had a baby.

She was happiest carrying one in her arms. She thought, he will never be so happy again, but stopped herself, remembering how it angered her husband that she should say that. Still it was true. They were happier now than they would ever be again.
